

GENIUS Act stablecoin rulemaking deadline landed July 18, forcing six federal agencies to finalize capital, reserve, and licensing rules for USDC/USAT issuers.

STABLECOIN NEWS

GENIUS Act rules finalized

Six federal agencies finalized capital, reserve, and licensing rules for stablecoin issuers; OCC set a $5M capital floor and FDIC confirmed no deposit insurance for token holders.

BlockEden / Kraken Blog

Treasury warns of $6.6T deposit flight risk

Treasury estimates yield-bearing stablecoins could pull up to $6.6 trillion from bank deposits, which legacy institutions call an existential threat to fractional-reserve banking.

FinanceX Magazine

Visa launches bank stablecoin platform

Visa unveiled a platform letting banks and fintechs issue, move, and manage stablecoins, broadening its crypto push as adoption widens.

Bloomberg

EU MiCA transition period ends

The EU's MiCA transitional period closed July 1, requiring every crypto-asset service provider in the bloc to secure full authorization or shut down.

Bloomberg Professional Services

HACKING & SECURITY INCIDENTS

AFX Trade bridge exploit: $24M

An AFX-powered bridge on Arbitrum was drained of about $24.15M in USDC on July 22; the attacker converted proceeds to ETH and consolidated in one wallet.

CryptoRank.io

Triple-A hot wallets drained: $9.7M

Payments firm Triple-A had hot wallets drained across TRON, Ethereum, Polygon, and Arbitrum on July 25; the firm says customer funds were not affected.

BeInCrypto / CryptoTimes

Wanchain, Verus bridges hit same week

Bridge exploits at Wanchain and Verus, plus an Allbridge Core flash-loan drain and a B² Network staking contract seizure, pushed weekly hack losses past $47M.

CryptoTimes

Ostium oracle manipulation hack

Arbitrum-based perps exchange Ostium lost an estimated $18-24M after an attacker used a compromised price-oracle private key to push fake future-dated price reports.

Halborn